Dear Gammi sis,

You have a good content base and good understanding of the subject matter. You have attempted all the questions which is commendable. Following are the areas you need to work upon.

1) Read question carefully, try to understand the demand of the question, in many questions you missed the context of

e.g no. 1, 2, 3
2) Make a proper structure, write in an orderly manner once you got essence / requirements of the question structure your answer accordingly. Address every aspect of the question equally e.g & no - 1, 2, 3, 4, 5

3) Try to write under headings / sub-headings, this way you will be able to cover comprehensively. Have clear space between your introduction, Body and conclusion e.g & no - 4, 8, 17

4) You have a good content base but its a never ending pursuit to keep on expanding it. Some of your answers could have been better presented with more content e.g & no - 8, 18

5) Do not write introductory in more than 50 words, for introduction use stats, facts, content etc. And try to write directly relevant introductions

6) Avoid writing unnecessarily & write to the point this way you will be to few words

Displacement of tribals and other marginalised communities has been one of the major consequences of development process in India. Comment. (150 words) 10

→ Any development process needs natural resources to be exploited but in India the major cost had to be borne by aborigines and natives of areas with these natural resources. Tribals and marginalised had to cede their lands, their forest rights, control over resources in favour of multi purpose projects mining projects and other forest activities regulated by state. Since the time of British occupation, they have been the worst sufferers, as they had to leave. And even after independence, to fulfil the needs of countries, large scale mining in Jharkhand-Chhattisgarh-Odisha belt led to their large scale displacement, with no which rendered them homeless.

Land alienation was also one of the main causes behind Naxalbari movement in tribal dominated areas. The reasons are delay in rehabilitation, bureaucratic hurdles, diversion of funds, lack of involvement of tribals in decision making, no proper health facilities for displaced people. Due to lack of proper education (as literacy rate is $\approx 60\%$ in Scheduled tribes, much lower than national average), they have not been able to integrate with mainstream society.

Lately, many human right activists have taken up their cause as can be seen in Narmada Bachao movement, tribal protests ^{by funds} in Niangiri hills against Posco steel plant, protests against nuclear plant in Pune.

But, India needs sustainable development without compromising the human rights of these displaced people. We need a medial solution so that growth and rights can both be protected simultaneously.

India has huge advantage in terms of the demographic surplus it is enjoying, but unskilled, unhealthy youth cannot ~~lead~~ lead India to its growth potentials. India needs to focus on primary, secondary and tertiary health care and the N. Health policy's guidelines. to increase the health budget to 3% is a welcome move.

We need to figure out major health problems being faced by youth and then target them specifically. Burden of non-communicable diseases like diabetes, cancer, heart diseases have been decreasing the efficiency of population. At the same time, diseases like malaria, tuberculosis, HIV-AIDS, guinea, measles - have potential to be a major hurdle in our ambitious plans.

Govt has well understood this concern and by setting elimination targets (like 2025 for TB, 2022 for Malaria, 2030 for AIDS), and increasing medicines under universal immunisation programme campaigns like "Anaemia Mukt Bharat", "Poshan Abhiyan", Iron Plus Initiative is paying the needed attention to health of

The appointment of first Lokpal, Purnaki Chandra Ghosh is a major step towards India's target of corruption free society. The importance of Lokpal is evident from the fact that one of the most developed and ~~one~~ top rankers in 'corruption index' countries had established this institution decades back.

In India, though it was recommended many years ago but due to lack of political will power, it could not be implemented but finally we have developed a consensus - on "zero tolerance" towards corruption.

It is rightful to hope that Lokpal can bring a huge change as it shall work like an independent body and with ~~powers~~ to its jurisdiction extending upto Prime Minister. The appointment procedure in terms of a select committee recommending names to appointing committee also seems fair.

The need of the hour is that it works fairly, without intervention from political class, and some of the loopholes like exceptions ~~from~~ to powers ~~to~~ in cases of allegation on Prime Minister, dependence and overlapping with CVC are taken care of. Also, to eradicate corruption, we need

Pressure groups, unlike political parties, are formed to address their immediate problems. Discuss the different methods adopted by the pressure groups to realise their goals.

(150 words) 10

Political parties are formed on basis of ideology and their main aim is to get power in political sphere while pressure groups are formed on specific issues, to influence decisions of government in their favour. To do this, they have a number of options - most potent is use of printed and electronic media to maximise their reach, widen their base and keep their demands in front of government, like human right activists agitating in Narmada Bachao case. Other method is long and peaceful marches, like the one by farmers from Nasik to Mumbai to keep forth their demands; some take ~~violent~~ help of violent methods that harms not only the national property but the lives of innocents as ~~gat~~ agitation for reservation; some form Caucus and influence govt decisions by offering them huge monetary help during elections and thus benefiting from culture of reciprocity like Confederation of India (FICCI, CII) - which are considered even during passing of budget; some take the help of law and file cases in form of PIL or otherwise like women activists in Triple Talaq case or Subramala case; some on Transgender rights (see 377 scrapping).

Transgender, Though sec 377 of Indian penal Code, has been struck down by Supreme Court, still transgenders face huge problems in society. They are looked down upon, laughed upon, discriminated when it comes to jobs, lack family support, denied proper housing, health care benefits, education and worst in the social stigma attached to them.

Though, constitution of India under Article fourteen provides equality before law but the society has not internalized it yet. The struggle of transgenders has been ongoing since more than a decade when Naz group started fighting for their legal rights. With time, people became more aware about their issues and Parliamentarians have finally brought an enactment that prevents any discrimination against transgender in educational institutes, recognition of identity like poverty, unemployment, illiteracy, which can be better solved via collective action.

Apart from this, SHGs have played an instrumental role in empowering women. In various parts of villages, women have formed these groups - leading to inculcation of leadership skills, giving them power to make decisions for them, making them financially independent and they have been getting help from Government as they form an important pressure group, thus capable of availing financial assistance from Govt. initiatives.

Genesis goes back to Self Employment Women's Association in 1980's - and till today, we which gave a thrust to women groups.

Poverty, urbanization and climate change are some of the major factors that lead to malnutrition. Examine the statement and also highlight the reasons due to which India's improvements have been slow in this regard. (250 words) 15 introduce malnutrition with some data, facts to show level/potential

Poverty is the condition of not having adequate resources to fulfil the basic needs. In India, as per Multi Dimensional Poverty Index, ≈ 300 million people are still under poverty line, hence unable to spend on their basic diet; malnutrition is mainly among children and women; children have deficiency of proteins thus leading to wasting and stunting. In India, though major initiatives like public distribution systems & mid-day meal scheme have been taken, they have played huge role in lifting people (especially children) out of poverty but the lack of nutrient rich foodgrains like (coarse grains like millets, bajras), pulses in the diet lead to ~~no~~ nutrient deficiencies. Our PDS system also distributes wheat, rice, pulses but coarse grains are not included;

Climate change in the past decade has induced huge displacements; like Kerala floods - where thousands of people became shelterless and hence most suffered were the poor, children, women with inappropriate and unhygienic food;

In India, one of the major reasons is also the overuse of fertilizers - that leads to deficiency of certain micro-nutrients in grains like zinc, iron; due to the higher MSP prices of wheat and rice, farmers have diverted from coarse grains to these and the major source of nutrients (these coarse grains) have been losing their dominance in poor people's diet. ~~due to the diversion of good quality grains, improper implementation of schemes, bureaucratic hurdles, intermediaries; illegal beneficiaries are also hindering factors.~~

NHRC is a statutory body constituted under Human Rights Act, 1993 and has been charged with the responsibility to investigate all incidences of human rights violations, either suo moto or on basis of any complaint. It acts as a civil court during proceedings.

During the past years, it has dealt with many cases of bonded labour, child labour, sexual violence, insanitary living conditions in jails, tribal displacement issues - involving human rights violations. Its powers were strengthened through NHRC Amendment Act, 2003 - as it was allowed to announce relief 2006 to victims and compensations even during the course of investigation. ~~to~~

Its recommendations are only advisory; though the parliament needs to respond within month and a proper action taken report is to be submitted explaining the reasons of rejection of demands - which gives some accountability but yet, not close to if it was made binding.

Central vigilance commission was set up by an executive resolution in 1964 on recommendations of K Santhanam committee to tackle corruption cases - and its jurisdiction includes all ^{above} Grade ¹ officers;

After S.C judgement in "Vmeet Jain" (Hawala case), government has taken a major step to make it effective by giving CVC - a statutory status under CVC Act, 2003. It was made the sole body to deal with complaints under public interest disclosure ; thus making it responsible for dealing with whistleblowers complaints and taking due actions.

It has its own technical wing, secretariat - thus making it independent. When it comes to the violation ~~to~~ cases of corruption under prevention of corruption Act, 1988 - CVC has been given superintendence over CBI - thus

Q1) The chief vigilance commissioner ^{is also} made the members of committee that will select the Directorate of enforcement (coming under CBI);

It's appointment is through a body consisting of the Prime minister, Home minister and leader of opposition - thus giving the majority to government in power which is a loophole as it may lead to politicization of the office. Hence, the appointment procedure should be made more fair.

Also, CVC - has limited area of jurisdiction, as it does not include all ^{above} grade officers - thus leaving out a major chunk of corruption cases. Through a new body in Lokpal that has ~~more~~ much bigger area of jurisdiction has been appointed - it has led to some tensions between the two bodies due to overlapping of functions.

The need of the hour is to clearly demarcate the areas of function of each body, and specifying their powers so that there are no overlaps ; as this can be a major loophole in ensuring the purpose of new body is achieved.

Write specific measures

Though CVC has been effective in dealing with various corruption cases, Government should analyse if there is need of more vigilance commissioners to decrease the burden and more transparency and accountability in its functioning. The fact that it lacks its own investigation wing must also be looked after; CVC being only an advisory body - lacks resources of its own to take action which makes it ineffective. --
